PIANOS.

GAINED FIRST PREMIUM FOR GREATEST merit at the New Orleans Cotton Centennial and WORLE'S Exposition for refined and wonderful power of tone, elegance of design, and superb finish. Only piano endorsed by United States commissioners, from each of the States. Cases finest carved, rosewood finish—finest imported double repeating action—three strings throughout of best patent steel wire—keys best ivory. Our new patent steel tuning device, instead of wood, is the greatest invention ever made in pianos. It consists of stationary STEEL tuning pins that are set in a mold and molten STEEL is run round the pins keeping them solidly in place. A thimble or shell pin is made to exactly fit the stationary pin revolving therein; thus the strings wind round the pins. After the strings are properly stretched the piano can never get out of tune, the cast plank being of STEEL not affected by extremes of climate. This will be appreciated by all musicians in city or country. It will stand twenty years without tuning and is good for 100. No other piano has this improvement.

Great strength and durability is another advantage. In other pianos holes are bored in wooden boards and tuning pins inserted. The pins turn round in this board and cannot stand permanently in tune, and it often cracks, splits, dries out, becoming utterly, totally and entirely worthless as a musical instrument. Our STEEL tuning device is in no way affected by such casualities, and the sounding board is so constructed that our pianos can never become thin or metallic in tone. They are always in tune and the expense of tuning is saved. This patent alone is worth millions and makes our piano the greatest in the world. Prices are no higher than other pianos. Buying direct from us, the largest manufacturers, you save $100 or $200—dealers' profits. Don't mind the ominous growlings of dealers and agents, who see their chances of selling a poor piano at a big profit of $200—slipping away—pity them.

We guarantee our pianos ten years. 200 styles. We have put our prices at lowest bed-rock for Cash.

A $600 Piano for $259.50; a $900 Piano for $297.50; a $1200 Piano for $375.50; a $1500 Piano for $475.50.

Upright Cabinet Grands, with stool and rubber cover shipped on board cars at S. F., to any part of the United States, Canada or Mexico. Our terms are cash with order. If not as represented money returned. We occasionally have good second-hand pianos, made over at $100 to $300, which we take in part payment for our own. Write or call for catalogue, free.

OLD CHANCE CARTER.

THE LIFELONG DEVOTION OF A BLACK MAN IN GEORGIA.

Emancipation Made No Changes in His Life—For Many Long Years He Guarded His Old Master's Grave—No Legal Title to His Home, but He Held It Till Death.

Chance Carter lived seventy-five years a slave and twenty-five a free man.

That is, from the best anybody can tell about it.

He was so old that he had outlived everybody who might have told anything about his real age, which spanned the average life of three or four generations.

Away back in the days when Decatur [illegible] and Athens was a cross roads village, Mr. William Carter and his wife came to this section, childless but wealthy, and the possessors of many slaves.

Among these slaves was Chance, who was more than half free, a good business man; but a lover of cock fights and rough, country sports.

Chance was a man of middle age, and had a large family when the railroad reached Atlanta. He was practically in charge of the plantation affairs, his master relying implicitly on his fidelity and good judgment in all the affairs connected with his estate. His faith was never shaken by a single dishonest act on the part of the old negro.

THE HAND OF DEATH.

Along in the '40s Mr. Carter died, and his wife had his body laid to rest on a lot in the plantation, where she might repose beside him when the time came for her to depart. The good old lady had no one left but Chance, and on the honest negro she relied still more than ever.

The sons and daughters of the slave grew to manhood and womanhood, and the plantation prospered. The grave of the old master was kept green.

In 1857 Mrs. Carter felt the approach of death. She felt that the two lonely graves would be left unprotected, and that the stranger would desecrate them, and that possibly the plowshare might rudely break away the mossy mounds above their last resting place.

So she called Chance and to him made a deed of gift to thirteen acres of land, asking him to remain there and look after the graves of the master and mistress as long as he lived. The negro promised to do so, and he kept his word.

Nobody thought of molesting Uncle Chance.

Of course, under the laws existing prior to the war, a slave could not be freed, nor could he become a freeholder. But this old man was a freedman and a landholder, by virtue of the common respect for the sacredness of his charge, and that public sentiment and sympathy [illegible] was not uncommon among the people of the south in such cases.

The rest of the property went to distant relatives, and the inevitable separation, which was one of the most painful incidents of slavery, occurred between the father and his children.

A LONG VIGIL.

Uncle Chance remained on the little farm left him by the old mistress. Amid the shock and commotion of war he never wavered in his devotion, and Lincoln's proclamation fell unheeded on his ears.

It could do nothing for a man who was only a slave so far as his affections bound him. And they were as fetters of brass binding him to the memory of those whom he had loved and served in life, and from whom, in death, he chose not to be disunited.

After the war some of the lands passed into alien hands, and included in the tract was the home of the old slave. The new owner set up a claim that the thirteen acres were held by the old negro without any legal title, and instituted suit in the courts for the recovery of the little farm.

This aroused the old man, who had kept his vigil so long and well, and he consulted a lawyer. The lawyer was Judge W. L. Calhoun, who had eaten Mrs. Carter's ginger cakes and listened to Uncle Chance's quaint stories when a little boy.

Although there was really not the shadow of a title to Chance's holding, the lawyer determined to stand by him and help to preserve the little legacy and enable the old man to die by the graves of those who had loved and trusted him.

And the lawyer won his case by a speech of such masterly eloquence that the crowd in the court room was moved to tears.

There was something peculiar about Chance Carter. His mind was of a higher order than was common among uneducated slaves. He was a shrewd trader and scarcely ever made a mistake in a bargain.

His fidelity in life and in death to the interests of his master and mistress was something remarkable, and there are few parallel instances of this sort of devotion between man and man.

He lay down and died of sheer old age. He preserved his faculties up to the very last moment, and among his dying injunctions to his children were to see that the graves of the old folks at home were not left desolate.

It was extremely appropriate that they should have laid him to rest in the same quiet spot, which he had guarded so zealously through all these long years.

And out there, on the old plantation, among the budding trees and trailing vines, after a hundred years of such vicissitudes as seldom fall to the lot of man, sleeps in undisturbed repose, the bodies of the master, the mistress and the faithful Uncle Chance.—Atlanta Constitution.

The Matter with Hannah.

A rather overcultured and overstrained literary and critical view which fell into our hands the other day was relieved at one point by the statement that "Hannah Moore was never kissed in her life." We suggest to the Browning club that in this fact may possibly be found a clew to the origin of that familiar classical saying: "And that's what's the matter with Hannah."—Boston Globe.

All Kinds of Leather.

It has been demonstrated that all sorts of skin may be tanned. Beasts, birds, fishes and reptiles have been alike brought to the tan yard, and the prices of their skins are regularly quoted in the price current of The Shoe and Leather Reporter. Alligator skins have long been a favorite material for the manufacture of pocketbooks and satchels. The high price which the first product commanded soon induced manufacturers to produce imitations. These are merely embossed leather. The peculiar scaly nature of the alligator's hide is successfully imitated by means of steel dies, which leave a durable impression upon the leather so perfect in resemblance to the genuine alligator skin that only experts can tell the difference. The same process is used to imitate other fancy [illegible] so that there is no novelty that is not imitated within three months of its first appearance. The alligator skins were first put on the market in 1876.

Kangaroo skins have only been on the market about three years. The skin of the porpoise has lately been used for shoes, and is well considered because of its fine grain making it waterproof. It resembles a goat skin. The skin of the seal has also been made into leather, and sells for about $40 a dozen skins.

One of the latest novelties is rattlesnake leather, which is used chiefly for making pocketbooks. The mottled appearance of the finished skin makes a pretty leather, and it is rather fashionable. The imitation skins, made of embossed sheep skin, are already on the market. The skin of the monkey has also been tanned and used for making pocketbooks. Bear skins have long been used with the hair on for caps and coats, and the hides have also been used for leather. Of course these novelties are not made in large quantities, and are mostly used for fancy trade. During the past few years the hides of horses have been successfully tanned and put upon the market as a standard article of leather.

American kid is now taking a prominent place in the leather market, and is even preferred to French kid by many manufacturers, who find it quite as soft, pliable and durable, and much cheaper. It is declared that American kid at twenty-five cents a foot is equal to French kid at forty cents. Pig skins are yet in demand for saddles.—New York Sun.

Kept Within the Law.

The action of that New Jersey bank in dumping $4,000 in silver on its floor in payment of its checks in the hands of a rival institution brings up the question of legal tenders. Gold has always been legal tender in the United States. With a brief interval previous to the passage of the Bland act silver dollars have been also. Greenbacks are, but gold and silver certificates are not, except on customs, taxes and public dues. National bank notes are not legal tenders, and can and have often been refused in payment of debt. Subsidiary coin is legal tender only in limited quantities.

A gentleman went to the stamp window of the postoffice in a neighboring city and called for 100 one cent stamps, tendering in payment 100 one cent pieces.

"Those are not legal tender in any such quantities," growled the stamp clerk; "I refuse to accept them."

"You do, eh?" answered the gentleman. "Well, give me one stamp," at the same time shoving out a penny. The stamp was forthcoming.

"Now, give me a stamp." He got it.

"Another stamp."

"Now another."

"See here," said the clerk, "how many stamps do you want? You are keeping twenty people waiting."

"Oh, I always keep within the law," responded the gentleman. "Another stamp, please. Pennies are not legal tender in large amounts. Another stamp."

And he shoved off his pennies and purchased stamps, one at a time, till he got his hundred. But the clerk was cured. Pennies are legal tender at his window in barrel lots.—Washington Post.

Spirits Scared the Editor.

We don't believe in spirits—in any way, manner, shape or form—but Wednesday evening quite a party assembled at the residence of Mr. J. R. Forrester to have a table rapping, and the results of that meeting were wonderful. The table used was an ordinary wooden one and the circle was formed by some of the party seating themselves around it and placing their hands in such a manner as to form a circuit. For some time the table remained unmoved, but after a little more time it began to bob about and move from one end of the room to the other. Then the medium said that the spirits were at work.

Of course we didn't believe in that, but as the table raised up from the floor cold chills passed up and down our back and a fit of trembling seized hold upon us. We didn't have any confidence in the spirit part of the performance, understand, but we trembled all the same. At one time the table was raised a considerable distance from the floor, falling with such force as to break it to pieces. Some of the names given by the spirits were only known by one of the party in the room; at other times the names were unrecognized. The messages delivered were, some of them, quite startling, and were enough to make a believer of the most incredulous. Verily, some strange things happen at these meetings, and they are things which we can't explain at all.—Albany (Ga.) News and Advertiser.

Average Life of a Horse.

According to The Field, the possible length of the life of a horse is far beyond the average duration of it. A horse 15 years old is usually accounted of little value, and, as a rule, it would be difficult to give away the survivor of 18 or 20 years. But a horse's useful life extends to 30 or 40 years, and if the animal is used with care it may do valuable service during all this long term. It may be noticed that all the recorded instances of the death of very aged horses go to show that their lives were shortened by some mischance, and not by old age.—New York Telegram.

THE BEGGING BUSINESS.

A POLICEMAN COMMENTS UPON THAT AND OTHER SUBJECTS.

San Francisco Mendicants Who Sell the Food They Receive—It Is Used for Free Lunch—The Officer's Grief Because He Can't Be President.

What a policeman doesn't know is oftentimes past finding out. He is a traveling junk shop of scrap information; a peripatetic encyclopedia of miscellaneous bits of knowledge. As a rule he isn't much up on theology or science, "'cause he never had no show" in that line, but on the hows and whens and whys and wherefores of the life that rolls on about him he has a "pretty tight grip." If you know how to go to him, you can learn a great deal more than the way to the pavilion or what time the last car leaves the ferry. Of course, there are a few policemen and a regiment of other policemen.

"This is a pretty hard kind o' life," said one who belongs to the first class, last night. "It's killing. After a man has been an officer for a while he's good for nothing else. Hobbling about from one corner to another, and keeping within sound of the sergeant's whistle, is bad for ambition. You never heard of a policeman getting any high office. Tailors, plowboys, rail splitters, canal boys and printers' devils have climbed to the president's chair, but nary a policeman. I once heard of an officer who became president of a literary society in Kansas, but the meetings were held in his house; his daughter was the secretary, his son was the treasurer, his other son was the sergeant-at-arms an' his wife an' baby made the audience. He was the first officer I ever heard of who got a high position, and perhaps he didn't count. Some officers graduated to the dash board of street cars, but they never appear to go any higher. Although we are constantly telling people to 'move on,' we always stand still ourselves. We pick up a good deal of information on different subjects, but the only people that seem to want it are the reporters. You see that girl there with the bundle?"

The reporter took off his glasses and saw her at once. She was a very dirty slovenly dressed child, and had a bag in her arms.

"She's a beggar, and is loaded up with bread, cake, meat, slices of pie and about everything that's eatable."

"Why, she has enough to last a family for a month," said the reporter. "I suppose she can lay off, now, like the ant."

"Oh, no she can't or won't," returned the officer. "She'll be out again to-morrow morning and will work another part of town. Do you know what the beggars do with the bread and other stuff the charitable people give them? No? Well, they sell it to the saloons on the Barbary coast and in other tough quarters. The meat an' loaves that are put into the dirty hands of mendicant poverty today furnish the free lunch counters of the saloons to-morrow. That girl will make from $2 to $3 a day begging. She sells what eatables she gets and cleans up quite a penny from the sales. Then some people give the beggars money, and in a week the earnings amount to a good deal."

THE WAYS OF PROFESSIONALS.

"Do all the beggars sell what is given them?"

"What would they do with it? At some houses they get enough to keep a family for a week. They all have a dozen or more pockets in their clothes, and before they make their appearance at a second house they have stowed away what they got at the first."

"Do they eat of the contributions?"

"Oh, yes, indeed. People throw out their back door better food than many an honest man has ever a chance of seeing. The beggars keep the choicest and sell the rest."

"What do they do with the clothing they get?"

"The boys and girls don't go for clothing. The fathers and mothers work the wardrobe racket. The old man is willing to do any kind o' work for a coat or a pair o' pants, and the woman has three ragged boys at home who can't go to school because they have no clothes. The beggar is as sagacious in working his trade as the cleverest business man in the city. He picks out the houses with the well trimmed gardens and the clean sidewalks and steps. The woman attends the places where well dressed boys play about the door. All the clothing they get is sold; some for rags, some to the second hand dealers, and the proceeds go for drink. I have been traveling a beat for seven years, and I never knew or heard of an honest man making a door to door canvass for assistance. No matter how near he was to starvation, the decent man won't do that."

"Do beggars get any food from restaurants?"

"Very little. A bit of meat is in a bad way when it can't be used by a restaurant. And then the refuse in all the eating houses is sold to the dairies or pig raisers. Men go around every day with wagons collecting the refuse, and the worth of the stuff is knocked off the milk bill."

Here the sergeant's whistle sounded, and when the officer responded he had not breath enough to continue his remarks.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Too Rich for Diamonds.

He was very fond of diamonds. Everybody who knew him knew his weakness for those jewels, although everybody knew that he was poor. They used to laugh at him kindly, because when he hadn't a quarter to buy a cheap meal he'd show a Kohinoor in his shirt front. One day he made a lucky strike and found himself rich. He went off to Europe, and in the meantime he kept gaining riches. He came back most quietly dressed, without a sign of jewelry of any kind. An old friend met him and looked at him.

"There's something wrong about you, Dan. You lack something. Where are the diamonds?"

"Oh," said Dan, "I'm too rich to wear diamonds."—San Francisco Chronicle.

THE WINE OUTLOOK.

In last week's issue we published the opinion of Chief Viticultural Officer Wetmore on the grape and wine outlook the coming season. Since then we have made a careful investigation into the probable wine yield and have no hesitancy in saying that his estimate of the product for 1889—20,000,000 to 25,000,000 gallons—is altogether too high. We think that 15,000,000 to 17,000,000 gallons nearer the mark. Of course this latter estimate may not suit the wine merchants, but for all that the condition of the vineyards is such as would not fairly justify a larger estimate. In looking through many vineyards in this valley and elsewhere we find that the copious rains of last spring has caused a heavy growth of wood on the vines, while the bunches of grapes are few and far between as compared with last season, when the product was less than 18,000,000 gallons—the estimate of this paper—although, if we mistake not, the Commissioner's figures were 30,000,000 gallons. In regard to the statement made by Mr. Wetmore that wine grapes would bring from $6 to $8 per ton, we make bold to assert that no grapes in Sonoma Valley can be bought for that figure.

Mr. Wetmore's opinion as regards the price of wine grapes may apply to the Southern California product, which is far inferior to that of Sonoma Valley, where the finest wine grapes in the State are produced. Last season while grapes were bringing from $8 to $10 per ton in less favored localities the Sonoma Valley product brought from $12 to $30 per ton, according to quality, and when the shortness of the crop is considered we feel safe in predicting as good if not better prices than last season.

One of the reasons why wine has been bringing so low a figure of late years is the fact that the members of the Viticultural Commission, who ought to know better, have from time to time published to the world their individual opinions as regards the probable yield of wine grapes and the prices they will bring. Particularly is this so when so low an estimate is reached as $6 and $8 per ton. This is all wrong, as it tends to keep prices down, no matter whether the supply exceeds the demand or not.

We can see no reason for taking a gloomy view of the wine outlook, when the past is taken into consideration. In 1879 and 1880 grapes went begging at $10 per ton. In short, the wine market went all to pieces during those years. Growers became despondent and there was talk of pulling up the vines and substituting some other product in their stead. It was decided, however, to see what time would bring forth. In 1881 the wine market commenced to pick up and in 1882 wine grapes were bringing from $30 to $42 per ton in this valley and for several years thereafter the best of prices prevailed. Taking these facts into consideration we continue to hope for the best, as it goes to prove that the wine market may be way down one season and way up the next.

SEBASTOPOL, a town much smaller than Sonoma, has a cannery and fruit drier. One thousand cases of blackberries will be put up this season, besides other kinds of fruit. This cannery employs between twenty and thirty hands several months in the year. What's the matter with Sonoma? She's all right, you bet. But she ought to have a cannery.

THE population of Chinatown in San Francisco has greatly diminished since the Scott Exclusion bill went into effect. About six thousand Chinese have left that city and less than 300 have arrived.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

Something About Frank K. Ward, the Homicide.

[Special Corr. INDEX-TRIBUNE.]

WASHINGTON, June 21, 1889.

No man in Washington has enjoyed during the last decade a wider local celebrity than Frank K. Ward, the dairyman, who now languishes in jail charged with murder. Fourteen years ago Ward drove a wagon attached to the Signal Service, and on his rounds became enamored of the milk business. The capital required to buy one outfit was small and it was only the question of a little adroit financiering to secure it. The merry milkman was only in business a few months when the several-millionaire philanthropist, W. W. Corcoran, noticed his attentive business energy and encouraged him to put forth stronger efforts. It was the reconstruction period in the history of Washington business. Old houses were vanishing and new ones coming to the front.

No one was surprised then when Frank K. Ward bought two more wagons and established himself in headquarters. The Corcoran money had again been taxed to assist a worthy man. For the next three or four years the growth was phenomenal. Ward was not even contented to allow his headquarters to remain merely a repository and distributing point for his half hundred wagons. He fitted up in one part of the building a lunch room. The furnishing was pretty and the food palatable to the large class that like pie and milk. The venture so succeeded that one after another branches were opened about town, until Ward's trademark "Alderney" appeared on a dozen neat places about town. These rooms were all similarly fitted—wicker furniture, polished floors, ornamental scales for weighing yourself, music boxes, flowers and canaries in brass cages. Everything was scrupulously clean. Frank K. Ward had the respect of everyone. His luck became proverbial. When he generously gave a valuable horse and buggy to a charitable fair to be raffled off, everyone was glad that he was the lucky man to draw it.

Everything might have gone on swimmingly to the end of life if Ward had not one failure. He was not a gentleman. His name at the bank was good for many thousand dollars, and when his old benefactor Corcoran died Ward still retained his respect and confidence. He belonged to the Masonic fraternity and many will remember that he distributed milk, sweet and seemingly pure, at the San Francisco conclave that had been put in cans in Washington five days before. Of course, it must have been heavily drugged, but it was a surprise to the Californians. At every charitable bazaar and at the fairs of the crack local military organization he was foremost in contributing, and from whatever impulse the giving comes people warm toward generous souls. But Ward loved notoriety, thirsted for it. He was noisy in his attempts to impress every person he met with his importance. Neglect was death to him.

Now, to be constantly the central figure in any legitimate social cast in Washington is nearly impossible, for the city is for the greater portion of the year the rendezvous of the most important persons in every line of life.

So Ward sought the social outcasts and became a great character among the sporting class. He hobnobbed with cheap actors and tin-horn gamblers. Often in the saloon in which he this week committed murder, he was wont to throw pennies at a crack in the floor for $100 a toss. He never drank anything but wine, and his diamonds were mounted and worn strictly in the approved gambling style. Lacking mental resources outside his business and being as genuine a vulgarian as ever lived, he sought relaxation in stupid alleged jokes. He would astonish some weak bar room ghost by taking off his old plug hat and jumping on it and then giving the physical wreck five or ten dollars with which to buy a new one. His associates included a Brooklyn Congressman with sporting proclivities, and in time a running horse was named after him.

No business can really be trusted to run itself and as the human machinery needs rest, Ward was compelled to neglect his business in order to be up all night with the boys. Still, he spent money like water and when new business rivals came into successful competition, he was not worried. Even when things went their worst and a few months ago he became a bankrupt, he retained his sporting proclivities, and no change was observable except that he drank harder than ever and his resorts were still lower dives. A few weeks ago, he received a serious beating at the hands of a young man named Adler. On Tuesday night of this week he met him in a saloon, and seemingly without further provocation, without the shadow of an excuse, wantonly shot him to death.

THE funeral of Mrs. Hayes, wife of ex-President Hayes, took place yesterday from her home in Fremont, Ohio.

Kill the Worms.

The Pacific Rural Press publishes the following remedy for the hosts of worms that are devastating the orchards and vineyards throughout the State. It says: There seems to be an unusually wide distribution of leaf-eating caterpillars this spring. Cutworms, sear, sawfly larvæ, pear slugs, etc., are reported in quantity in different parts of the State. For all these leaf-eating pests there is a remedy, and that is Paris green, using one pound of the poison to 180 gallons of water and applying in a small spray, being careful that the Paris green is continually agitated to prevent its settling to the bottom of the vessel. It does not dissolve in water, but is merely mechanically mixed with it, and is thus carried to the leaf. If soap is dissolved in the water before the Paris green is put in, it is not so likely to settle, but must still be agitated. We have given this prescription several times before, but readers don't seem to remember it or to pay any attention to the subject until the worms are on them.

Monarch Cooking.

Mr. A. Robinson of Gilroy, California, writes under date of May 27th, as follows: "I would particularly recommend your Monarch Gasoline Stove No. 107, as every one I have sold has given satisfaction in Baking and Cooking. My customers are much pleased with its compact shape, safety, simplicity and durability. The New Fuel-saving Cut-off Cap pleases the ladies, as it reduces the expense of using gasoline. This fact alone places the New Monarch Stove No. 107 far in advance of all others, and then the New Automatic Safety attachment makes it the safest stove in use. I consider it the boss. When I sell one to a lady who has a married sister in this vicinity I know I will soon have another customer for one more No. 107." Ask your dealer for it, or send for catalogue to JOHN F. MYERS & Co., 863 Market St., San Francisco.

The Johnstown Horror.

The appalling horror at Johnstown has shocked fifty million of American people, and thousands of lives have been lost and millions of property destroyed. This is, beyond question, the second greatest flood on record. The loss of life and the loss of property, and the thrilling incidents surpass anything known in modern times. Thousands of people desire a clear, graphic and accurate history of this greatest catastrophe known in the history of this nation or the world for centuries. The History Company of 723 Market street, San Francisco, Cal., have just issued, in book form, a complete history of the Johnstown flood, finely illustrated and complete in nearly 500 pages. The book will be sold through agents. See advertisement in another column for agents, to whom most liberal terms are offered.

MR. E. SLATTERY, of Delhi, La., says her son, 14 years of age, had a dreadful time with ulcers, sores and blotches which followed chicken pox. After using many remedies without benefit she gave him Swift's Specific, which cured him sound and well.

WE have sold S. S. S., since the first day we commenced the drug business, and have heard some wonderful reports of its effects. Many use it with best results to cleanse malaria from the system, and for blood poison, scrofula and such disease it is without a rival.

COLDERWOOD & Co., Monroe, La.

Mr. W. A. TIBBS is a printer in the office of the Jackson, Miss., Clarion-Ledger. He says that three years ago he was the victim of bad blood, which deprived him of health and threatened serious consequences. He further says that he took S. S. S., and it cured him.

I HAVE been subject to painful boils and carbuncles over my body during the spring season, and after much suffering and much useless doctoring I found a permanent cure in Swift's Specific. It is the monarch of blood medicines.

Disarming an Unseen Foe.

"This was sometime a paradox," as Hamlet says. Since, however, the people of Amercia and other lands have been enabled to pit Hostetter's Stomach Bitters against that unseen foe, malaria, it is no longer a paradox, but an easy possibility. Wherever malaria evolves its venom to poison the air, and decaying unwholesome vegetation impregnates the water, there, in the very stronghold of miasma, is the auxiliary potent to disarm the foe and assure efficient protection. Fever and ague cake, no matter how tenaciously they have fastened their clutch on the system, are first forced to relax their grasp and eventually to abandon it altogether. But it is its preventive force that should chiefly recommend the Bitters to persons dwelling in malaria-cursed localities, for it is a certain buckler of defence against which the enemy is powerless. Cures, likewise, dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney and bilious ailments.

THE UKIAH EXCURSION.

Over 2,000 People Take in the Trip ---Beautiful Scenery.

The excursion of Marin and Sonoma county people to Ukiah last Tuesday over the San Francisco and North Pacific Railway was one of the largest and most orderly that ever passed over the road. There were over 2500 people aboard. Of these Sonoma furnished 300; Tiburon and San Rafael about 500; Petaluma, 400; Santa Rosa, 800; Fulton, 100; [illegible] 100; Healdsburg, 200; Cloverdale, [illegible]

The road from Tiburon [illegible] Ukiah takes in some of the finest scenery in the State—high and lofty mountains, deep canyons and rocky gorges, picturesque valleys, clear running trout streams, green hop fields and vineyards, orchards, beautiful residences and thrifty towns and villages.

The road from Cloverdale to Ukiah is a series of cuts, tunnels, trestlings and fillings and is one of most costly and substantial roadbeds in the State. The traveler is struck with the smoothness of this newly constructed and well-ballasted road, which has evidently been built for the purpose of making fast time.

At 12 o'clock the excursion trains arrived at Ukiah, the present terminus of the road and the county seat of Mendocino, and the 2500 excursionists took the place by storm. They poured into the hotels, restaurants, private residences and saloons to satisfy the cravings of the inner man. But Ukiah was prepared for the siege and no one went hungry or thirsty, provided always they put up that little old half dollar, which of course was nothing more than the correct thing. Ukiah has a population of 1800 and is pleasantly located at the head of the valley of the same name. Its people are hospitable, happy and hopeful and now that they have railroad communication with the outer world are looking forward to the time when their town will be the gem of Northern California. Four hours were spent very pleasantly in the mountain town and at 4 P. M., amid the cheers of the crowd which lined the platform, the twenty-four carloads of excursionists started on the return trip in good humor and high spirits until Ignacio station was reached. Here the Sonoma Valley excursionists were side-tracked and waited an hour and a half for an engine to convey them home. This long wait was anything but pleasant as it was 11 o'clock before Sonoma was reached. This was the only disagreeable feature of the day. But when we consider the cheap fare, the splendid accomodations, the smoothness of the road and the endeavor of the company to do its level best for the pleasure of the excursionists, whose numbers far exceeded their most sanguine expectations, we in common with the rest of the Sonoma Valley people, proclaim that there is no kick coming and that the day's outing was a success in every particular.

An Insolvent Debtor.

George Pabst, the tinner and plumber of this place, has been adjudged an insolvent debtor by Judge Dougherty. George thought his fortune had been made when, a few months ago, he secured the contract for tinning and plumbing the new houses in the boom town. But alas! for human expectations, he has undoubtedly found out when it is too late that "all that glitters is not gold." The Sheriff has been directed to take possession of all his property, except such as may be by law exempt from execution. The creditors of the insolvent are ordered to appear before Judge Dougherty in Santa Rosa on August 5th at 11 A. M., to prove their debts and choose an assignee of the estate.

Land to be Reclaimed.

James G. Fair and Senator Jones will shortly commence the reclamation of 75,000 acres of salt and tide marsh lands near Sears' Point on the line of the Sonoma Valley Railroad. The old levee will be reconstructed and a perfect system of drainage inaugurated. This land is capable of producing immense crops of wheat and barley even in the dryest of seasons if properly leveed.

A Prolific Peach Tree.

L. Adler of this place brought to this office last Monday a small branch of a peach tree containing 35 fine large peaches. The branch measures less than two feet in length, the fruit being clustered closely together. The tree from which the peaches were taken is literally loaded down with fruit. It is of the early Crawford variety and was raised without irrigation.

The Festive Mosquito.

The Woodland "Mail" asserts that the branches of the eucalyptus tree placed in open windows morning and evening will effectually prevent the visits of the festive mosquito into the building, thus cheaply avoiding the necessity of barring windows and doors with netting and affording better ventilation. That paper says that the insect will not come near the leaves of this tree.

For Sale—One horse 7 years old, weighs 1050 lbs; can be driven single or double. A lady can drive him. One single harness, one good spring wagon. Will sell altogether or seperate. J. H. SACKETT. *

WILL OF ROBT. C. JOHNSON.

His Estate Valued at $1,600,000.

The Widow Receives One-half---Other Bequests.

The will of Robert C. Johnson of Buena Vista ranch, one mile east of Sonoma, who recently died in Paris, has been filed for probate in San Francisco. The executors named in the will, which is dated February 27, 1878, are Mrs. Kate Johnson, E. B. Mastick and Geo. E. Jenkins. The estate consists of Buena Vista farm, real estate in San Francisco, bonds, notes and money in all worth at least $1,600,000.

Testator bequeaths to his wife, Mrs. Kate Johnson, one-half of the real and personal property, including the homestead southwest corner of O'Farrell and Leavenworth streets, household furniture, horses, carriages, plate, pictures, etc., and all things used in and about said premises, together with his clothing, jewely, office furniture, etc. The bequest is made with the express understanding that it includes a provision of $20,000 left to her in trust for Rosalind, five years old, who is under the care of Mrs. Johnson. To the executors is bequeathed $100,000 in trust for charitable and educational purposes of San Francisco, to be applied as the executors see fit. Additional bequests are made as follows: Rebecca Ritchie wife of A. A. Ritchie, $10,000; Mrs Laura H. Blake, wife of Dr. Chas. E. Coe, $10,000; Georgine Olsen Larsen, $10,000; Malene Loennecnen of Bergen, Norway, $10,000; Karen Jacobia Neilsen of Chicago, $10,000; Masonic Board of Belief of San Francisco, $10,000; Wm. M. Hatfield, testator's clerk, $10,000; Occidental Lodge, No. 22, F. and A. M., $25,000, in trust, the income to be used in taking care of a lot in Masonic Cemetery and the balance for lodge use in charitable purposes. The remainder of the estate is to be equally divided between E. O. Jenkins, of New York; Mrs. Rebecca Jenkins, his wife; George E. Jenkins, Percy Jenkins, Clara Jenkins, Mary Jenkins, Henrietta Jenkins, Herbert Jenkins, Mrs. Mary Adams and Mrs. Judia Morris.

On the 6th of January, 1886, testator added a codicil to the will, to the effect that in the division of his estate his wife shall have the option to receive the title to his lands in Napa and Sonoma counties, known as Buena Vista ranch, and all the personal property on said estate at the appraised value thereof as part and parcel of her one-half of the entire estate.

Glen Ellen, June 24, 1889.

More Improvements.

The Monahan building on the corner of Spain and First street East will shortly be remodeled and otherwise improved. This building, with its tiled roof and adobe walls, is one of the most ancient looking in town. It has been an eye-sore, lo! these many years, situated as it is upon one of the most prominent corners of town.

A. Pinelli has purchased 52 feet frontage on First street East from Thos. Monahan, Jr., guardian of the minor heirs of the Monahan estate. The property adjoins the City Bakery and a two-story building will be erected upon his purchase by M. Pinelli.

A Grand Exhibition.

There will be opened at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets, San Francisco, this evening and continue until further notice, one of the grandest spectacular exhibitions ever offered to the public of this State. It is entitled "Pompeii," and represents the destruction of that ancient city by Mt. Vesuvius. Sonoma Valley people who have occasion to visit the city should make it a point to witness this wonderful production. It will be a change from the regular visit to the theatres. The admission price is only 25 and 50 cents.

A Serious Case.

From County Physician M. M. Shearer it is learned that a little girl, nine years of age, who is suffering from the effects of brutal treatment at the hands of her guardians, was brought to the County Hospital, from Sebastopol, Friday afternoon. According to the story told by the child, and which is confirmed by the good people who brought her from Sebastopol, she has been made the innocent victim of cruel, if not inhuman treatment. Her physical condition, without other explanation, is sufficient to denote the lack of proper nourishment, while on several parts of her body are to be seen the marks of heavy blows. One hand is almost parboiled from having been thrust into boiling water from time to time, which it seems [illegible] one of similar modes of punish[illegible] or more properly torture, that she has been subjected to. She also tells in a simple straightforward way about being tied to a rafter and left standing with her body half immersed in water for several hours at a time, while the family was away. The doctor thinks the child's health is in a critical condition from the effects of her brutal treatment. If the child and her kind deliverers have fairly represented her case, an investigation should be made by the proper authorities.—Santa Rosa Democrat.

A BIG STRIDE!

Up to last year we pursued the stereotyped plan in vogue everywhere of buying our furniture, etc., from the San Francisco jobbers. That entailed upon our customers the payment of three separate profits, viz: the manufacturer's, the jobbers' and our own. As freight can only be brought from the East in full car-load lots to get the advantage of car-load rates, it is rather a larfle undertaking to attempt to import directly, but we decided to try it.

With many misgivings, in July of last year we sent our first car-load order to the Eastern manufacturers. The car was loaded at the door of the factory in Michigan and came straight through, arriving in August. The quality of the goods and their prices was as much a surprise to us as to our customers. We could sell them Eastern Hardwood Furniture at about the price they have been paying for cheap California Pine Furniture. It is needless to say that

Our Venture was a Success.

We continue to send in our orders, and shipments now reach us monthly and we are dealing in but little else. For these persons we are now selling

Furniture at Less than San Francisco Wholesale Prices,

And in proof of this statement we ask intending purchasers to come and see our goods, get our figures and before buying compare them with San Francisco prices, and then there can be no question.

We are selling Fine Antique Oak Bed-Room Sets of eight pieces for $35, that are quoted in San Francisco at $45.

Square Top Extension Tables in Hardwood for $16, that are sold in San Francisco for $22.

Body Brussels Carpet we quote you at prices you have heretofore paid for Tapestry.

Smyrna Rugs, Portiers and Window Shades are also among our Eastern importations, and we give the same advantage in those lines. In short we are now giving Sonoma county people the middlemen or jobbers profit on everything in our line.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SATURDAY, JUNE 29, 1889.

A PRESENTIMENT.

An Irish Soldier Who Knew He Was Going to Die—A War Reminiscence.

In the autumn of '62 Gen. McClellan was relieved from active duty in the Army of the Potomac and Gen. Burnside assumed command. This change was very unpopular with the boys, who loved Little Mac and who felt a great degree of uncertainty in the ability of the new commander. There was wide spread discontent in the ranks in consequence of this change. Added to this, the invincible strategists at home were still clamoring for a forward movement, regardless of time or favorable opportunity.

In view of these facts, it was deemed absolutely necessary that a battle should be fought under the new leader at the earliest possible moment. The first battle of Fredericksburg was the result. On the day of that battle our brigade climbed the heights on the southeasterly bank of the Rappahannock, opposite Fredericksburg, and halted upon the summit near some heavy batteries. As we looked down upon the rigid city with its slender pontoon bridges upon its [illegible] margin, and as we cast our eyes to corresponding heights just back of the city, frowning with cannon and breastworks and swarming with Confederate soldiery, a painful and overpowering sense of the impossible task before us and the deadliness of the undertaking in all its horrible magnitude, forced itself upon the minds of all present.

A sense of duty, the imminence of the great dangers before us, and the nearness of the conflict, served to close up the ranks and to keep nearly every man in his place.

I had been detailed with a small squad to act as provost general to prevent falling out and straggling to the rear. During the short halt on the brow of the heights, before the march across the river, several of the boys came to the rear of the column to leave with the chaplain valuables and messages to their friends in case anything should happen.

Among the number came Mike, a large, powerful and courageous Irishman, a great favorite in the regiment, and a man who had always laughed at danger and had rejoiced at the opportunity of having a "scrimmage" with the enemy.

On this occasion he appeared to be an entirely different man. He approached the chaplain with tears in his eyes. He gave him a picture of a sister living in Portland, his Catholic catechism and other relics, and in a choked voice gave the address of his friends and what he then declared to be his dying message to them.

The chaplain endeavored to cheer and encourage him, but in vain.

"Chaplain," said he, "I'm not afraid to fight; I'm not afraid to die; I am not a coward; but there is something here (slapping his breast) which tells me my time has come. Chaplain, will you please write my sister a kind letter? She is a Christian Catholic and I love her dearly."

Soon the word "forward" rang along the line, and Mike, with the tears coursing down his cheeks, grasped the hand of the chaplain and requested the good man to pray for him. He then took his place in the ranks. The long column began to move slowly down to the river, soon increasing its speed to the double quick, over the pontoon bridges across the river into the streets of the city, out on the plains and hillside beyond it amid smoke, shot and shell and death wounds, up to the very frowning jaws of death on the heights beyond. The terrible charge, the murderous repulse, repeated again and again that afternoon; the night cannonade, the long day following of skirmish and movement, the succeeding night and the early morning abandonment and retreat across the river have been many times told. As soon as possible after the battle the chaplain made earnest inquiries for Mike; but no Mike was there to answer him.

In the terrible charge he was seen to fall in the forefront of battle, and was borne from the field fatally wounded. His boisterous, cheerful voice, good natured countenance, rich brogue and burly form, were never again with us. His was the most marked and startling case of presentiment of coming death or disaster that came under my observation in the army.

Army life and its dangers made many of us believe in fate—that the decree of the Great Author had fixed the span of life for each one. We are sometimes constrained to believe that a very thin curtain was stretched between the seen and the unseen, and that a few mortals were permitted to look beyond the visible and to receive the absolute assurance of the future fate in store for them and near at hand.—L. D. Carver in Lewiston Journal.

The Russian Journalist Katkof.

Twenty years ago there still existed in Moscow the salon of the Prince and Princess Odoievsky, one of the literary centers of Russia. Other houses there were where literary men assembled in groups and coteries. At Katkof's, for instance, on Sunday evenings, one was sure to find the shrewd and caustic Leontief, Professor Liubimof and his fellow workers on The Moscow Gazette and The Russian Messenger, some of the professors in the recently established Lyceum, and occasionally a passing stranger, from either north or south, who sympathized with the Moscow as distinguished from the St. Petersburg school of literature and politics. Katkof, decided as he was in his political views, was a charming talker on literary subjects, about which he allowed more difference of opinion. He was such a hard worker, especially at night, that Sunday afternoons and evenings were the only times when he was visible, as his Gazette was not issued on Monday.—Eugene Schuyler in Scribner's.

Ghost Horses.

A phantom team is said to haunt the house which marks the scene of the terrible Fletcher Brook tragedy in Washington county. People in the vicinity say that they hear it drive up about once in two weeks. The men in the lumber camps near by also declare that the ghost disturbs their dreams.—Lewiston Journal.

A Scrap of Paper Saves Her Life.

It was just an ordinary piece of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable and could live only a short time; she weighed less than seventy pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a sample bottle. It helped her, she bought a large bottle, it helped her more, bought another and grew better fast, continued its use and is now strong, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds.
